Test Pilot Hits 1,238 Mph. At Altitude Of 79,494 Feet

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—(P)—The hottest plane in the free world, the D558-2 Skyrocket, holds a new speed record of 1,238 miles an hour, the U. S. Navy said Thursday.

And the hottest test pilot, lanky Bill Bridgeman, says zooming at that speed is "no different than flying 750 miles per hour."

The real kick comes, Bridgeman said, when the rocket-propelled hummingbird runs out of power at a record altitude of 79,494 feet and swoops down 15 miles for a deadstick landing on the desert.

Both the speed and altitude marks were confirmed here by Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball. Bridgeman flew the Douglas-built rocket ship to unprecedented heights last Aug. 7 and set the speed record Aug. 15 in tests at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The Navy previously had admitted only that the research plane had climbed at 1,000 miles an hour.

In all, Bridgeman made six rocket flights last summer. The Skyrocket was launched each time at 35,000 feet from a B29 mother ship.

Each time, the 35-year-old Douglas test pilot said, the needle-nosed 40-foot ship rammed smoothly through the sonic barrier—which is reached at about 660 miles an hour at 35,000 feet and above. In pressurized suit and cockpit, Bridgeman says he was "not especially conscious of speed."

"You notice the high speed only when you make a mistake," the ex-Navy bomber pilot said. "Then she really jumps and gets hard to control. Generally, though, there's too much blue sky and so many things to do that the speed isn't noticeable."

The record speed was made in level flight after the Skyrocket had reached the apex of her climb. It was measured by instruments in the plane and radar ground readings carefully checked by the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

The moment that sends "your guts into your shoes," Bridgeman declares, comes when the last of the four rockets used by the plane loses its thrust.

"Then you have to bend 'er over fast, level off and start gliding for home."

John White Quits Post As Deputy

Resignation of Deputy Sheriff John White was announced Thursday by Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

White, of 149 Walnut street, gave his resignation to the sheriff verbally with the explanation he was considering another job offer in Chillicothe.

Radcliff said he has not yet named White's successor. Former Deputy Walter Richards is to replace White temporarily.

WHITE, WHO became a deputy sheriff last December after serving as a city policeman, was one of three deputies on Radcliff's staff.

The sheriff recently announced the male deputies would have their monthly salaries raised from $235 to $250. Mrs. Helen Strous, office deputy, is to receive a pay boost to bring her salary to $270 per month.

Union Awaits White House, Industry Move

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—(P)—Philip Murray, president of the striking CIO United Steelworkers, is waiting for the White House or industry to take some step toward breaking the paralyzing 46-day-old dispute.

Meanwhile the longest strike in steel history drifts along in its seventh week. It is costing the nation about $40 million a day in lost wages and steel production.

There has been no visible effort on either side to reach a settlement in the economy-strangling strike since Monday when negotiations arranged by Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman ended in deadlock.

A maze of rumors sprang up around the country about possible secret settlement of the strike that has idled more than a million and one half workers, but Murray brushed them all aside with:

"That simply isn't so."

Iron Age Magazine, a trade journal, said Murray's rejection of the industry's compromise offer at the last peace talks did not meet with approval of his union lieutenants. But union officials said Iron Age's report is without foundation.

The issue of a union shop, which would require all workers to join the union, or some modified form of it appeared to be the stumbling block in the path of a settlement.

Murray wants compulsory membership, but the industry is holding out for union membership on a voluntary basis only.

Murray said he has contacted no one in government or industry in the last 24 hours, adding:

"The situation remains as it has been. I know of no plans for any further negotiating sessions."

Fine Hinting TV Shows Too Much

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 17.—(P)—Gov. John S. Fine believes television will "sound the death knell" of the convention system of nominating presidential candidates unless procedures are changed.

The Pennsylvania governor said that candidates should either be elected in a direct national primary or by binding convention delegates to the candidate receiving the highest vote in their state. He declared:

"The convention system must be overhauled, become more orderly and more responsive to the will of the people."

Communies Move General Dean, Other POWs To New Camps

MUNSAN, July 17.—(P)—The Communists Thursday said they have moved their prize captive, U. S. Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, from a prisoner of war camp at the bomb-shattered capital of Pyongyang to another camp in North Korea but did not give his new location.

The disclosure came in an exchange of letters by liaison officers of the United Nations Command and Communist truce teams in Panmunjom.

The Red letter told of a large-scale prisoner transfer involving Dean, former commander of the U. S. 24th Infantry Division, and numerous Korean captives.

The Allied communication demanded an accounting of 1,881 missing UN soldiers believed in Communist stockades. The UN Command said it has been making the request since December with "totally unsatisfactory" results.

The Allies at the same time answered a similar request from the Communists for an accounting of 1,014 Allied-held prisoners with information on all but four of the captives.

Showers Bringing Temporary Relief

CHICAGO, July 17.—(P)—Sun-baked areas from the Rockies to the Eastern seaboard were in for another day of hot and humid weather Thursday.

Showers brought temporary relief to some areas in the swelter-belt. Cooler air moved into the New England region, upper New York state and the Dakotas.

But it looked like another day of muggy weather for wide areas in the Midwest, south and east. Temperatures climbed into the 90s again Wednesday with some cities reporting record readings.

Calf Takes Romp In Clothes Shop

CLEVELAND, July 17.—(P)—A 250-pound calf, fleeing an unhappy fate in Union Stockyards, tore through a clothing store here Wednesday, leaving upset clothes racks and a broken window in its wake.

A truck driver finally captured the animal on a bridge and took it back to the stockyards.

Democrat Course Is Clear: 4 More 'Fair Deal' Years

State Resumes Talk Of Widening Court Street For 4-Lane Highway

Officials of Ohio's state highway department Wednesday night outlined to Circleville city council the results of a preliminary survey on a plan to ease the traffic burden on Court street.

The meeting, held in council chamber, brought new life to a project suspended some time ago when a proposal to widen Court street aroused a storm of protest from property owners.

E. L. Sheley, deputy of Delaware engineering division, state highway department, and R. N.

Ricketts, location and design engineer, conferred with the city officials.

Stressing the discussions were confined only to a preliminary study and further meetings will be held before any definite action is taken, officials said the preliminary survey covers two possibilities.

ONE IS to widen North Court street from Pleasant street northward to eliminate the present two-lane highway. The other alternative is to relocate Route 23 so as to bypass the heart of the city and locate on its western side.

State highway spokesmen revived the suspended project here after completing plans for a widening of Route 23 to handle four-lane traffic between Columbus and Bloomfield.

Results of the meeting were announced by City Councilman George Crites, chairman of council's finance committee and designated to speak for the municipal group.

Crites emphasized no commitments have been made of a definite nature.

"They (the highway officials) only came down to show us how they think it can be done. They brought no figures, no estimates—and all that data will have to be drawn up and discussed at a later conference," Crites said.

Crites said he expects the next meeting on the subject to be held here within the next two or three months.

SHELEY AND RICKETTS estimated the job, even when all details are in place, could not be started "for three or four years."

If the final decision is to move Route 23, rather than widen North Court street, Crites said the new route—as a general idea and not as yet detailed—would probably be as follows:

Switching off the present route at a point north of Forest Cemetery near the overhead crossing, the new highway would be constructed through the western side of Circleville. Under tentative plans, it would be located between the Con-

Another Zoom In Prices Due

OPS Says It Can't Police Curbs; Increases Indicated On All Sides

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(P)—Another batch of higher prices apparently are coming in a number of fields where the trend until recently has been all the other way.

The government is studying an Aluminum Co. of America request for price boosts of at least 10 per cent which, if granted, would mean higher prices for hundreds of household products.

The Office of Price Stabilization announced Wednesday the firm said it needed the hike to meet increased materials and possibly higher labor costs.

Alcoa indicated the price increases should be considered on an industry-wide basis, OPS said in announcing the request would be turned over to an industry advisory committee. Other chief producers of aluminum are the Reynolds and Kaiser companies.

TEXTILE PRICES are firming here and there, with scattered price hikes announced in synthetic, wool and cotton yarns, fabrics or end products.

Steel price hikes are widely expected to follow the end of the steel strike.

A tinplate shortage—due to the steel strike—could make canned fruits and vegetables so scarce this fall as to send their prices up.

Merchants are watching the new fair trade law, just signed by the President, to see if it heralds the end of the cut-rate bargains.

The housewife has been able to find numerous bargains on brand name appliances and drugs in some department and drug stores since the old fair trade law was kayoed by the Supreme Court.

Price controls are about to be dropped on almost everything department stores stock and upon still more foods.

OPS says Congress clipped its financial wings so short that it won't have enough employees left to do a policing job on the prices of many consumer goods.

The grocery trade scouts say the decontrol of prices of canned fruits and vegetables will kite their price tags. But they worry about the possibility that a tinplate shortage during the packing season may cut drastically the volume of this year's crop.

AND THIS, especially now that Congress has ended price controls on canned fruits and vegetables, could send prices up this fall in the grocery store.

The turn-about of prices in the textile field is widely hailed in the industry as signally the end of its long depression. The scattered price hikes of the basic fibers are not likely to show up in the stores for some time to come, spokesmen for the trade say.

Thesis-Writer Admits Slaying At University

BOSTON, July 17.—(P)—A 29-year-old Boston man, who said he "wanted to kill someone" because an educational society refused to accept his thesis, has confessed the shooting of Eileen Fahey on the Columbia University campus.

Miss Fahey, 20, a bookkeeper for the American Physical Society, was shot to death Monday morning while sitting at her office desk reading a letter.

Police Captain Francis Wilson said Bayard Peaks, a Boston meat-packing plant employee, told him he went to New York "to kill someone" in the society because the group had refused to accept a scientific paper he wrote on a theory of life.

The paper was entitled "Applied Electronics to Medicine With the Aim To Prolong Life."

Peaks is a former Northwestern University student.

Wilson said Peaks told him he fired three shots at Miss Fahey when she confronted him as he entered the society's office at Columbia University.

Peaks was traced by a description given to police by a university professor and an elderly woman who saw the slayer.

Foreign Aid Programs Facing Reshuffle As Fund Is Slashed

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(P)—A reshuffle of slashed foreign aid funds and a possible new appeal to the next Congress for more money were forecast Thursday by administration officials.

Congress cut President Truman's foreign military and economic aid request by 25 per cent, to $6,031,947,750.

In signing the appropriation bill Tuesday, the President termed the slash "the fastest kind of economy" because of the effect he said it would have on defense plans of the Western Allies.

Tackling the job of scaling down previous estimates, officials said these were among the steps under consideration:

1. Shifting part of the $3,128,224,750 earmarked for military aid to Europe to "defense support"—Economic assistance—of hard-pressed Britain. Last year the British received $350 million.

ABOUT $596 million was budgeted for the 1953 fiscal year beginning July 1. The legislation permits such a transfer of up to 10 per cent within the total European allotment.

2. An appeal to the next Congress for a deficiency appropriation to increase Point Four aid to South Asia, particularly India. Congress cut the South Asia total by 60 per cent to $67 million. The result is that only about $44 million will be left for India, compared with last year's $50 million. The administration had requested $118 million for fiscal 1953 largely with the aim of bolstering Prime Minister Nehru's regime against Communism.

New GI Bill For Korean Vets Is Signed And Now In Effect

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(P)—President Truman has signed a bill to help GIs released since the start of the Korean War to re-establish themselves in civilian life.

The act provides the new veterans with money for education and training, mustering out pay, unemployment payments of $26 a week up to a total of 26 weeks, and financial support for home and business loans.

To be eligible, a veteran discharged after June 27, 1950, must have served 90 days or more. The discharge must be other than dishonorable.

The biggest change from the World War II GI Bill is in the method of handling payments and in the type of schools veterans may attend. Congress wrote these in as a means of avoiding abuses under the earlier program.

Instead of making payments to the schools for the veteran, the government will provide the veteran with funds to pay his own tuition fee, buy books and handle his living expenses.

THE EX-GI CAN go parttime or fulltime to any school on a list approved by the VA or state agencies. For each day of military service, a veteran is entitled to 1/4

Red Germans OK Display Of Art

HANNOVER, July 17.—(P)—An art collection from Soviet-occupied East Germany is piercing the Iron Curtain for the first time.

The art objects—18 boxes full—are relics of the great German religious reformer Martin Luther. They have arrived for showing at the Lutheran World Federation Congress, which opens here next week. Heretofore, East German Communist officials have banned the export of art objects, even to West Germany.

Bare Facts Stump New York Cop

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 17.—(P)—Deputy Sheriff Arthur Willis halted a car for speeding Wednesday. In it sat four women naked from the waist up.

As the quartet donned brassieres, the driver said to Willis: "Well, men drive bare-chested, don't they?"

Wrote Willis, in a postscript to his report: "By the way, forgot to ticket them for speeding."

tainer Corp. Plant and tracks of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.

South of the city, the proposed new highway would rejoin the present route at a point about one-half mile south of the corporation line.

Crites said a possible new route through the eastern side of the city has been set aside in discussions for several reasons.

He pointed out a complete new highway would have to be constructed under the eastern-side plan through a section which includes Berger hospital, schools and well built up residential districts.

Also, if a new route were built all the way around the eastern edge of the city, it would add considerable mileage, the highway officials explained.

POSSIBILITY OF a route through the city's eastern sections had been discussed when the project first reached public discussion stages after World War II.

The highway officials said 4,800 vehicles use Route 23 through Circleville on an average day.

The local project would be part of an overall plan to have a four-lane highway from Columbus south to Portsmouth.

Protests from property owners caused the project to be postponed when it was first placed before the public here. Subsequently, federal funds for highway work were reduced.

Revival of the plan is based upon the expectation the necessary funds could now be secured if a definite plan is set at Circleville.

Truman Spells Out Necessary Party Program

Kefauver, Russell Quickly Fall Into Line With Approvals

CHICAGO, July 17.—(P)—The Democrats have set their course—they propose four more years of the New Deal-Fair Deal philosophy.

The trend was established by President Truman who laid down a fighting declaration to the Democratic Party convention that there be no "betrayal" of his political creed.

And immediately, the two major candidates for the party nomination fell into line and pledged a do-or-die battle against what they called "Republican reaction."

Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, plagued by his designation as the anti-Truman candidate of the South, bid for northern labor and "Fair Deal" support with a denunciation of the Taft-Hartley law he helped enact.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, self-titled peoples' choice for the nomination, called for a fight on what he labeled "Republican isolationism and reaction."

Their declarations seemed to indicate a developing pattern of thinking among the presidential hopefuls that the Republican candidate of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will force the Democrats to pick a nominee who can call himself a progressive. The selection will be made at the national convention which opens here Monday.

IN WORDS that paralleled Truman's official message to the convention delegates, Kefauver told a news conference Wednesday:

"The Democratic Party must continue to be the liberal, progressive party of the nation. We cannot retreat on either foreign policy or in the domestic field."

Kefauver leads in the Associated Press delegate tabulation with 256 votes to 120 1/2 for Russell, based on pledges of support and known first-ballot preferences. Mutual Security Director Averell Harriman, an all-out supporter of Truman policies, is running third with 112 votes. It takes 616 to win.

Truman said in his message, to be printed in the official convention program and a n e d to everyone of the 1,576 delegates, "that no other political party has 'done so much, so well, for so many people.' He declared:

"There must be no turning back or faltering on the great course our party has pioneered. There must be no betrayal of the New Deal and Fair Deal."

Matching the call of Eisenhower for a "shining promise" crusade by the Republicans, Truman sounded the bugle notes of a "burning faith" crusade by the Democrats.

"There will be voices calling us to turn aside from the path to victory," the President said. "We cannot afford to be beguiled by the weary or the fainthearted."

"OUR ANSWER must be that we will not compromise with the forces of defeatism, or reaction, or fear—that we will not retreat from the great humanitarian principles that have made our country what it is today."

Vice President Alben W. Barkley, whose 74 years may not stop him from becoming a formidable candidate for the presidential nomination, echoed the President's demand that the party stand on its record in office.

Reciting what he said were gains made by farmers, labor, business and the aged and unemployed, Barkley said the Democratic Party has "earned the confidence of the American people."

Truman's message, apparently written well before he went to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington for a checkup after his tussle with a virus infection, exploded a new bomb under efforts of National Chairman Frank McKinney and others to compromise a civil rights plank in the party platform.

And it threatened further complications in the contest over the seating of rival delegations from Texas. One of these, headed by Gov. Allan Shivers, is definitely anti-administration. The other, headed by former Rep. Maury Maverick, is tabbed as a "loyalist" group.

Legion Home To Be Closed

Circleville's American Legion Home on East Main street is to be closed effective Aug. 1.

Legion Commander Harry Clifton said the closing was voted during the last meeting of the Legion members.

Clifton added the decision was prompted by a lack of income into the post with which to maintain operations.

The local Legion Home will be opened for regular meetings on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month, the commander said, and on special occasions.

The crash took place as the craft left Northrop Airport, not far from busy International Airport, the city's main landing field.

State Resumes Talk Of Widening Court Street For 4-Lane Highway

Officials of Ohio's state highway department Wednesday night outlined to Circleville city council the results of a preliminary survey on a plan to ease the traffic burden on Court street.

The meeting, held in council chamber, brought new life to a project suspended some time ago when a proposal to widen Court street aroused a storm of protest from property owners.

E. L. Sheley, deputy of Delaware engineering division, state highway department, and R. N.

Ricketts, location and design engineer, conferred with the city officials.

Stressing the discussions were confined only to a preliminary study and further meetings will be held before any definite action is taken, officials said the preliminary survey covers two possibilities.

ONE IS to widen North Court street from Pleasant street northward to eliminate the present two-lane highway. The other alternative is to relocate Route 23 so as to bypass the heart of the city and locate on its western side.

State highway spokesmen revived the suspended project here after completing plans for a widening of Route 23 to handle four-lane traffic between Columbus and Bloomfield.

Results of the meeting were announced by City Councilman George Crites, chairman of council's finance committee and designated to speak for the municipal group.

Crites emphasized no commitments have been made of a definite nature.

"They (the highway officials) only came down to show us how they think it can be done. They brought no figures, no estimates—and all that data will have to be drawn up and discussed at a later conference," Crites said.

Crites said he expects the next meeting on the subject to be held here within the next two or three months.

SHELEY AND RICKETTS estimated the job, even when all details are in place, could not be started "for three or four years."

If the final decision is to move Route 23, rather than widen North Court street, Crites said the new route—as a general idea and not as yet detailed—would probably be as follows:

Switching off the present route at a point north of Forest Cemetery near the overhead crossing, the new highway would be constructed through the western side of Circleville. Under tentative plans, it would be located between the Container Corp. Plant and tracks of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.

South of the city, the proposed new highway would rejoin the present route at a point about one-half mile south of the corporation line.

Crites said a possible new route through the eastern side of the city has been set aside in discussions for several reasons.

He pointed out a complete new highway would have to be constructed under the eastern-side plan through a section which includes Berger hospital, schools and well built up residential districts.

Also, if a new route were built all the way around the eastern edge of the city, it would add considerable mileage, the highway officials explained.

POSSIBILITY OF a route through the city's eastern sections had been discussed when the project first reached public discussion stages after World War II.

The highway officials said 4,800 vehicles use Route 23 through Circleville on an average day.

The local project would be part of an overall plan to have a four-lane highway from Columbus south to Portsmouth.

Protests from property owners caused the project to be postponed when it was first placed before the public here. Subsequently, federal funds for highway work were reduced.

Revival of the plan is based upon the expectation the necessary funds could now be secured if a definite plan is set at Circleville.

Matching the call of Eisenhower for a "shining promise" crusade by the Republicans, Truman sounded the bugle notes of a "burning faith" crusade by the Democrats.

"There will be voices calling us to turn aside from the path to victory," the President said. "We cannot afford to be beguiled by the weary or the fainthearted."

"OUR ANSWER must be that we will not compromise with the forces of defeatism, or reaction, or fear—that we will not retreat from the great humanitarian principles that have made our country what it is today."

Vice President Alben W. Barkley, whose 74 years may not stop him from becoming a formidable candidate for the presidential nomination, echoed the President's demand that the party stand on its record in office.

Reciting what he said were gains made by farmers, labor, business and the aged and unemployed, Barkley said the Democratic Party has "earned the confidence of the American people."

Truman's message, apparently written well before he went to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington for a checkup after his tussle with a virus infection, exploded a new bomb under efforts of National Chairman Frank McKinney and others to compromise a civil rights plank in the party platform.

And it threatened further complications in the contest over the seating of rival delegations from Texas. One of these, headed by Gov. Allan Shivers, is definitely anti-administration. The other, headed by former Rep. Maury Maverick, is tabbed as a "loyalist" group.

Another Zoom In Prices Due

OPS Says It Can't Police Curbs; Increases Indicated On All Sides

WASHINGTON, July 17—(AP)—Another batch of higher prices apparently are coming in a number of fields where the trend until recently has been all the other way.

The government is studying an Aluminum Co. of America request for price boosts of at least 10 per cent which, if granted, would mean higher prices for hundreds of household products.

The Office of Price Stabilization announced Wednesday the firm said it needed the hike to meet increased materials and possibly higher labor costs.

Alcoa indicated the price increases should be considered on an industry-wide basis, OPS said in announcing the request would be turned over to an industry advisory committee. Other chief producers of aluminum are the Reynolds and Kaiser companies.

TEXTILE PRICES are firming here and there, with scattered price hikes announced in synthetic, wool and cotton yarns, fabrics or end products.

Steel price hikes are widely expected to follow the end of the steel strike.

A tinplate shortage—due to the steel strike—could make canned fruits and vegetables so scarce this fall as to send their prices up.

Merchants are watching the new fair trade law, just signed by the President, to see if it heralds the end of the cut-rate bargains.

The housewife has been able to find numerous bargains on brand name appliances and drugs in some department and drug stores since the old fair trade law was kay-oed by the Supreme Court.

Price controls are about to be dropped on almost everything department stores stock and upon still more foods.

OPS says Congress clipped its financial wings so short that it won't have enough employees left to do a policing job on the prices of many consumer goods.

The grocery trade scouts say the decontrol of prices of canned fruits and vegetables will kite their price tags. But they worry about the possibility that a tin can shortage during the packing season may cut drastically the volume of this year's crop.

AND THIS, especially now that Congress has ended price controls on canned fruits and vegetables, could send prices up this fall in the grocery store.

The turn-about of prices in the textile field is widely hailed in the industry as signally the end of its long depression. The scattered price hikes of the basic fibers are not likely to show up in the stores for some time to come, spokesmen for the trade say.

Thesis-Writer Admits Slaying At University

BOSTON, July 17—(AP)—A 29-year-old Boston man, who said he "wanted to kill someone" because an educational society refused to accept his thesis, has confessed the shooting of Eileen Fahey on the Columbia University campus.

Miss Fahey, 20, a bookkeeper for the American Physical Society, was shot to death Monday morning while sitting at her office desk reading a letter.

Police Captain Francis Wilson said Bayard Peaks, a Boston meat-packing plant employee, told him he went to New York "to kill someone" in the society because the group had refused to accept a scientific paper he wrote on a theory of life.

The paper was entitled "Applied Electronics to Medicine With the Aim To Prolong Life."

Peaks is a former Northwestern University student.

Wilson said Peaks told him he fired three shots at Miss Fahey when she confronted him as he entered the society's office at Columbia University.

Peaks was traced by a description given to police by a university professor and an elderly woman who saw the slayer.

Waddell Rites Set

SPRINGFIELD, July 17—(AP)—Funeral services for "Doc" Waddell, 88, circus evangelist and dean of old-time circus press agents who died Tuesday in Columbus, will be held here at 1:30 p. m. Saturday.

Foreign Aid Programs Facing Reshuffle As Fund Is Slashed

WASHINGTON, July 17—(AP)—A reshuffle of slashed foreign aid funds and a possible new appeal to the next Congress for more money were forecast Thursday by administration officials.

Congress cut President Truman's foreign military and economic aid request by 25 per cent, to $6,031,947,750.

In signing the appropriation bill Tuesday, the President termed the slash "the falsest kind of economy" because of the effect he said it would have on defense plans of the Western Allies.

Tackling the job of scaling down previous estimates, officials said these were among the steps under consideration:

1. Shifting part of the $3,128,224,750 earmarked for military aid to Europe to "defense support"—Economic assistance—of hard-pressed Britain. Last year the British received $350 million.

ABOUT $596 million was budgeted for the 1953 fiscal year beginning July 1. The legislation permits such a transfer of up to 10 per cent within the total European allotment.

2. An appeal to the next Congress for a deficiency appropriation to increase Point Four aid to South Asia, particularly India. Congress cut the South Asia total by 60 per cent to $67 million. The result is that only about $44 million will be left for India, compared with last year's $50 million. The administration had requested $118 million for fiscal 1953 largely with the aim of bolstering Prime Minister Nehru's regime against Communism.

Red Germans OK Display Of Art

HANNOVER, July 17—(AP)—An art collection from Soviet-occupied East Germany is piercing the Iron Curtain for the first time.

The art objects—18 boxes full—are relics of the great German religious reformer Martin Luther. They have arrived for showing at the Lutheran World Federation Congress, which opens here next week. Heretofore, East German Communist officials have banned the export of art objects, even to West Germany.

Bare Facts Stump New York Cop

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 17—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff Arthur Willis halted a car for speeding Wednesday. In it sat four women naked from the waist up.

As the quartet donned brassieres, the driver said to Willis: "Well, men drive bare-chested, don't they?"

Wrote Willis, in a postscript to his report: "By the way, forgot to ticket them for speeding."

Legion Home To Be Closed

Circleville's American Legion Home on East Main street is to be closed effective Aug. 1.

Legion Commander Harry Clifton said the closing was voted during the last meeting of the Legion members.

Clifton added the decision was prompted by a lack of income into the post with which to maintain operations.

The local Legion Home will be opened for regular meetings on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month, the commander said, and on special occasions.

4 Die As Plane Crashes In Fog

LOS ANGELES, July 17—(AP)—A light plane, taking off in a fog, crashed into a house here Thursday and four bodies were taken from the plane.

The house was unoccupied. It was set afire, and a neighboring home was damaged.

The crash took place as the craft left Northrop Airport, not far from busy International Airport, the city's main landing field.

'Copters Take Off

PRESQUE ISLE, Me., July 17—(AP)—Two helicopters took off Thursday morning for Goose Bay, Labrador, on the second leg of a flight the Air Force hopes will be the first Transatlantic jaunt by "flying windmills."

Motorist, 81, Injured In Headon Crash

Allen Ward, 81, of Lockbourne Route 1, was injured late Wednesday near Ashville when his Model "T" Ford was involved in a three-car crash.

Ward was driving his 1927 vintage Model "T" west on Route 316, just west of Ashville, at about 5:15 p. m. Wednesday when an auto ahead of him slowed.

State Highway Patrolman Gene Miller said the other car, operated by Louise Welch, 31, of Ashville, had slowed for a bicycle and an approaching auto.

Miller said Ward's Model "T" struck the rear of the Welch auto and glanced off to the left, meeting an auto operated east by Clarence Foreman, 43, of Ashville, in a head-on crash.

FRONT END of the old car was demolished in the smashup, while the front of the Foreman car also was badly damaged.

The 81-year-old Ward was admitted in Berger hospital later for treatment of a scalp laceration, abrasions of the back and both legs and possible rib fractures. None of the other persons involved was hurt.

City Garage Sold For $35

A familiar landmark behind Circleville's City Hall was moved away Thursday by workmen.

It was the city's one-car frame garage, sold by Service Director Dewey Speakman.

Speakman said the service department sold the small garage to Roy Wallis for $35. Wallis told the service director he plans to use the small building as a children's playhouse.

The service director said he sold the building to clear the lot so it may be surfaced to provide parking space. The garage formerly was used to house the city's three-wheeled motorcycle.

BACK IN THEIR CAGE at the Highland Park Zoo, Pittsburgh, are the polar bears above after supposedly trying to dig their way out to freedom through a passage under the sidewalk. Attendants became suspicious when they noticed the animals huddling around one bear. He was discovered digging away while the others acted as "look-outs." At left, Howard Hayes, assistant superintendent, cruoches in the 10-foot-long tunnel after the escape was foiled.

WHO GETS the more than $300,000 in cash and stocks found in dilapidated old Detroit home of Mrs. Emma Schuknecht, 76, spinster department store clerk always believed to be in quite modest circumstances, is problem of Detroit authorities. After she died a search was started to find a will. What attorneys found was money, stacks of it bound with twine, in closets, drawers, in a mattress. (International)

DEATHS And Funerals

MRS. WILLIAM STREBER

Mrs. Estella Streber, 80, widow of William C. Streber, died at about 2:10 a. m. Thursday in the home of a son, Russell Streber, just east of Circleville. She had suffered a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Streber was born Dec. 26, 1871, in Carmel, Highland County, daughter of Isaac and Rachel White Simpson. She was the last of her generation.

On July 3, 1890, she married William Streber, who died March 31, 1934.

Surviving her are five daughters, Mrs. Lena Massie of New Carlisle, Mrs. Ora Carter of Fostland, Ill., Mrs. Ethel McBee and Mrs. Edna Buchhammer of Greenfield and Mrs. Myrtle Davidson of Springfield; four sons, Russell Streber and Lawrence Streber, both of Circleville Route 4, Harry Streber of Hillsboro and Joseph Streber of Springfield; 17 grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Sunday in the Church of Christ in Christian Union in Cynthiana, Pike County, with the Rev. George Anderson officiating. Burial will be in Beaver cemetery.

Friends may call Saturday in Defenbaugh Funeral Home.

Lightning Hits Twice In County

Lightning - spurring thunderstorms over Pickaway County during the last two days have caused damage on at least two farms.

Reports have been made of a cow killed by a lightning bolt and a silo damaged.

The cow, property of Ernest Enoch of Pickaway Township, was killed in her tracks by a bolt of lightning. The silo, located on the William Defenbaugh farm near Tarlton, received only minor damage when it was struck by lightning.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO, July 17 — Buying based on indications that the harvest movement to market is about ended sent wheat futures upward Thursday. There also was a little export news in wheat.

Favorable weather caused corn futures to slump. Oats held fairly steady most of the session. Soybeans firmed as buying offset some of the liquidation of recent sessions.

Wheat closed 3/4 to 1 1/2 cent higher than the previous finish, July 22 1/4-24, corn was 1/2 cent lower to 1/4 higher, July 1.80 1/4-84, oats were up 1/4 to 3/4, July 78 1/4-82, rye was up 1/4 to 3/4, July 78 1/4-82, soybeans were 3/4 to 1/4 higher, July 3.26 1/4-3.28, and hard was 7 cents a hundred pounds lower to 2 cents higher, July 3.10-35.

Motorist, 81, Injured In Headon Crash

Allen Ward, 81, of Lockbourne Route 1, was injured late Wednesday near Ashville when his Model "T" Ford was involved in a three-car crash.

Ward was driving his 1927 vintage Model "T" west on Route 316, just west of Ashville, at about 5:15 p. m. Wednesday when an auto ahead of him slowed.

State Highway Patrolman Gene Miller said the other car, operated by Louise Welch, 31, of Ashville, had slowed for a bicycle and an approaching auto.

Miller said Ward's Model "T" struck the rear of the Welch auto and glanced off to the left, meeting an auto operated east by Clarence Foreman, 43, of Ashville, in a head-on crash.

FRONT END of the old car was demolished in the smashup, while the front of the Foreman car also was badly damaged.

The 81-year-old Ward was admitted in Berger hospital later for treatment of a scalp laceration, abrasions of the back and both legs and possible rib fractures. None of the other persons involved was hurt.

City Garage Sold For $35

A familiar landmark behind Circleville's City Hall was moved away Thursday by workmen.

It was the city's one-car frame garage, sold by Service Director Dewey Speakman.

Speakman said the service department sold the small garage to Roy Walisa for $35. Walisa told the service director he plans to use the small building as a children's playhouse.

The service director said he sold the building to clear the lot so it may be surfaced to provide parking space. The garage formerly was used to house the city's three-wheeled motorcycle.

Ring Thefts Admitted By Orient Boys

Two Orient State School youths have admitted breaking into an Orient home about July 4 and stealing two rings valued at about $225.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said the boys are being held at the Orient school where they are being questioned further.

The sheriff said the pair stole the rings from the Paul Clark house, at the edge of Orient. The rings, a six-diamond ring valued at about $200 and a blue sapphire valued at about $25, were owned by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hott of Port Huron, Mich., who were visiting the Clarks.

The pair told the sheriff they had seen the Clarks and Hotts leave on July 4 and entered the house. They said they took the rings and a carton of cigarettes.

Radcliff added the pair told him they sold the rings later to a man who paid them $1.50 for them.

Bored With Life? Buy A Parrot And Try Feeding Him Spaghetti

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—What is the most widespread disease in the modern world?

A good case might be made for that death in life, that ennui of the spirit, called boredom.

It is the high price modern man pays for having so much leisure he doesn't know what to do with himself. It is peculiarly virulent in civilized nations. Savages aren't so susceptible to the ravages of boredom. They are too busy trying to stay alive.

Many physicians, if pressed, will admit that perhaps one third of the patients who crowd their waiting rooms are suffering basically from nothing but boredom. They go there hoping the doctor will find something wrong with them, something to give them the excitement of a real worry. But the medical profession so far hasn't been able to concoct a really effective anti-boredom pill.

"You are too tense—you need to relax," such patients often are told. This only encourages them to feel more bored with it all.

My theory is it would be better if the doctor said to them:

"You have a bad heart—you may die at any moment."

There is nothing that gets rid of boredom faster than the fear you won't live to enjoy it. More people, weary of living, commit suicide in hotel bedrooms in peacetime than destroy themselves on the battlefields of war.

We do our children wrong in educating them to believe freedom from worry will bring them happiness. A man with nothing to worry about can only do two things—become bored or fall asleep. That is the nature of the critter, and human nature doesn't readily change.

Boredom strikes the very poor as well as the very wealthy. Psychologists have found that the Bowery bum isn't happy because he has ducked his responsibilities in life. He is even more bored and frustrated than an idle rich man, who has at least one thing left to fret over; he can't take his money with him when he goes.

Most boredom seems to spring from a feeling of lack of accomplishment. The tedious tasks, the routine of the daily rut that wear out the lives of many people in our complicated civilization, give them too small a sense of importance, of being really needed.

A man isn't depressed so much by the fact that he is only a cog in a big machine as by the realization that even as a cog he isn't really essential to the machine. It is easy to get another cog. The further men get from nature the more they suffer from boredom. They weary their mind by fretting indoors when they should be tiring their muscles with normal, healthy exercise outdoors. A man who chops wood for two hours will not only relieve himself of boredom—he will have something to burn in his fireplace.

That is the best cure for boredom—to use your energy doing something worthwhile. You can't help but feel better.

I know one city dweller who solved his boredom by buying a parrot and teaching it to eat spaghetti.

"Everybody said I couldn't do it, but I did," he said. "I never heard of anybody in the world before ever teaching a parrot to eat spaghetti."

Today he is a happy man. The only bored member of his household is the parrot. Unless there is a crowd around watching him eat spaghetti he feels unhappy.

If you're looking for an unusual color scheme for a bedroom, here's one that might solve your decorating problem—slate blue walls, scarlet carpet, snowy white woodwork, black and white plaid bedspread. To match the walls, upholster a lounge chair in smoky gray-blue. Use milk glass lamps with scarlet shades.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

If you live where there are trees and flowers and birds and grass and forests and fields and streams or ponds or beaches, you might wish to read the following to your children or with them:

Did you ever wake up in the morning when the birds were singing and just lie there listening to their lovely songs?

Did you ever hurry to get washed and dressed so you might go outside to see these songsters? It's wonderful if you know the names of some of them. It's like knowing the names of your playmates.

As you stood and listened and watched outside you may have seen a bird carrying some twigs or grass or strings. Then you knew this bird was building a nest.

You may have seen a robin almost falling over backwards as it pulled a long, long worm from the lawn and flew off with it. By-and-by you may have seen where the nest was.

You may have seen a lot of baby birds in this nest holding high their open mouths as the mother arrived with a worm or insect or other food for them.

YOU MAY have gone with your big brother or father or mother or grandpa, looking for birds. And if you came upon a brook, what fun it was to see the water splash and hear it chatter as it hurried over the stones and pebbles.

Maybe a frog jumped into the water as you came near. Maybe some turtles on a log in the deep water slid off and disappeared beneath the surface.

On this walk you came upon some flowers, perhaps, and stepped upon a few before you saw them. Then you walked and watched more carefully. You saw some bees or butterflies poking their faces into the prettiest and best-smelling ones.

Perhaps you knew the names of some of these flowers. You may have wanted to pick some of them to take them home, but you decided to leave them there for other persons to see and the bees and butterflies to enjoy.

On this walk, too, you may have seen some toads and garter snakes or a whole lot of ants, which you watched for a long, long while.

Once or twice on your walk a rabbit may have startled you as it was frightened from its hiding place. Maybe it was a baby rabbit. You also may have seen a chipmunk or squirrel, or a timid woodchuck running into his hole in the ground.

You learned to love all the flowers and plants and trees and birds and other creatures, so interesting were they all. You could not think of harming one of them.

When evening came and it grew dark, you may have heard from the porch a whippoorwill or screech owl out among the trees, or a bull-frog down by the brook or pond.

You also heard an orchestra of insects out of doors—katydids and crickets, so many of them singing all at once they seemed to be everywhere. And from every direction you could see the fireflies flashing their bright lights—until at last you left for bed in order to be ready to hear the birds again next morning.

Before you went to sleep, you probably thanked God for all these beautiful, wonderful things.

Q. Our child is two. Would it be better for my husband and me to leave him in the church nursery during services, or with a baby sitter at home?

From the former he would have much-needed experience with other little children.

Q. We are so much annoyed by the bad table manners of our two children, five and seven, that we rarely have a happy mealtime. How can we remedy this situation?

A. Try to forget about their table manners for a week and have some happy times together. By-and-by, when all feel lovely toward one another, a few quiet, positive suggestions on ways for improvement might work wonders. If one of two types of ugly manners in each persist, send the offender from the table to finish his meal elsewhere. But don't stoop to nagging and being "mad" all the time.

WORLD CENSORSHIP

THROUGHOUT a large portion of the world censorship over the free distribution of news continues unabated, but there have been many daring and successful instances of defiance. Citizens of this country often are at a loss to determine how much credence to give to news from foreign countries, and are forced to speculate on how much of genuine news interest is withheld.

The Associated Press performs a real service in ascertaining every six months, from its correspondents at strategic points throughout the world, how far pressures tend to distort the real news picture. The grip of censorship behind the iron curtain is, of course, as firm as ever.

The Soviet Union, its satellites and China try to saturate with propaganda the news they permit to escape. This in the period from January 1 has been sifted by specially trained newspapermen to separate the false from the true.

Britain, France, Switzerland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Greece, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark and Italy have no censorship. Neither have West Germany, Canada and to a large degree the British Commonwealth of Nations. Outgoing dispatches are not censored in Yugoslavia, despite the fact it is Communist. India and Pakistan have an agreement to suppress "propaganda which might incite Hindu-Muslim violence." As to censorship, Latin America is, as it always has been, spotty.

There are distinctly bright spots in this picture. Four newspapermen were arrested in Chile for criticizing a cabinet minister, but they were freed and the minister quit his job. In Hamilton, Bermuda, an order against publishing an account of a parliamentary debate on foreign exchange control was successfully defied by "The Royal Morning Gazette." An effort in Manila to deport any alien who might write disparagingly of the President, Congress or the cabinet was speedily quashed.

There is an evident tendency in Italy to press for stories "friendly to the government." Throughout the Middle East correspondents have a pretty hard time.

Censorship is tighter in Venezuela, Colombia and the Dominican Republic, though incoming and outgoing dispatches are not censored now in Argentina. But the fight for freedom of the press goes on and will be continued relentlessly by men who believe in the efficacy of truth.

If ignorance were bliss, many people would be happier than they are.

These Days

There are those who enjoy chasing after events as though everything in life were a three-alarm fire. The Republican Convention, to me, was an irritant because I saw 2,412 Americans, delegates and alternates, regimented into a noisy mass. The same will happen at the Democratic Convention.

Television has made you a witness to this unsavory situation. You witnessed the demonstrations, all but one of which were professionally organized and directed. The extra help was hired. The only exception was the spontaneous expression of respect for Herbert Hoover. And of all things, that one was started by Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, who, while not agreeing with Hoover in ideas, has the breeding that impels him to do the decorous act.

Television has already outmoded the convention. Those who watched on television saw more than anyone could have in the convention hall. Do you remember that New York delegation being polled, with Dewey ordering people around, his face tense? Only those who watched on television could see that in all its ferocity.

The object of the direct primaries was to limit the power of the party bosses. It has not worked out that way in either party. Actually, the party boss is as strong as ever was. This is partly due to the apathy of the people and partly to the huge cost of politics. It is estimated that pre-convention and convention activities cost the Republicans of all factions between $20 million and $30 million. This is an absurdly high figure. It puts the Presidency up for sale.

Only one method is available for saving the convention and restoring self-respect for the delegates. That is to institute a secret ballot using voting machines. Under the rules, delegates vote by states. Under some of the laws governing primaries, delegates pledged to a candidate must vote for him for a varying number of ballots. In such circumstances, the secret ballot loses some of its effectiveness, since the delegates are already pledged to a candidate.

The primary laws are so varied that they have become an additional element of confusion. What is necessary is some uniformity in the primaries, but this seems difficult, if not impossible, because election laws are passed by state legislators for their own states. There is no Federal election law, except as corrupt practices appear or are charged in the election of Federal officials.

Thus, it is possible to have 48 varieties of primaries, and it is amazing how ingenious the human mind can be in devising instruments of confusion.

Nevertheless, if the delegates knew that at each convention their votes would be secret; that each delegate had to vote for himself; that no other person could vote in his name—the delegate might face this responsibility with more dignity and a greater sense of usefulness. A man must feel futile and frustrated when he is voted like a Hitler Youth.

news behind the news

CHICAGO, July 17 — General Eisenhower's swift and complete reversal of Dewey's 1948 campaign tactics encourages party leaders in the belief that the New York governor will be nudged into the background of this year's presidential struggle, and in an "Eisenhower Administration," if the renovated GOP wins in November.

Ike's first act after his nomination was prompted by Dewey's woeful neglect of political entities four years ago. Privately and publicly, he assured members of the organization and Congress that every man or woman would be a general in the forthcoming battle. In 1948, there were too many brassy martinis and not enough privates. Dewey demoted the members of his command. Ike promoted them.

RELATIONS — Although learning the inside tricks of his new profession with amazing rapidity, which augurs future improvement in technique, Eisenhower was also given a thorough briefing in the New Yorker's blunders before and after the nominee arrived at Chicago. Many of his top advisers showed no compunction about suggesting that too intimate a tie-up with the two-time loser would be "the kiss of death," especially in such

Taft territory as Illinois, Ohio and Indiana.

Political courtesy requires General Eisenhower to show Dewey some consideration. Despite the politicians' dislike of the man at Albany, they rely on this kind of reciprocity for their own advancement and livelihood. Ingratitude is the mortal sin.

Even so, as World War II commander overseas, Ike frequently doghoused army buddies since West Point days when their operations or personalities endangered the larger cause or strained his relations with allied chieftains. A notable instance is De Gaulle, who has frequently been labeled as the "Dewey of French politics."

CREDIT — Moreover, Eisenhower realizes that Dewey's supposed "master-minding" of the pre-convention battle for delegates has been exaggerated grossly. The members of his private staff credit Senator James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, no great friend of the New Yorker, with proposing the strategy that contributed so heavily to Ike's triumph.

It was Duff who insisted that the General capitalize on the so-called "Texas steal." Raised in the hard school of Pennsylvania politics, "Big Red," as his friends call him, saw the emotional and technical appeal in this episode. As he told Eisenhower, it dramatized and sharpened the clash between youth and age, independence and stalwarts, insurgents and the Old Guard.

At first Ike would not listen. He characterized such action as "dirty ball," and stubbornly refused to indulge in it. But when his Texas supporters furnished evidence supporting the Duff theory, he agreed to "roar across the country" with demands for "fair play."

PERSUASION — Herbert G. Brownell, a Dewey aide, transformed this angry oratory into the legal barrage known as the Langlie motion, which barred dubious delegates from voting on their own or other contests. As professorial Liberals, such influential leaders as Warren, Stassen, Driscoll and many other bosses had to vote for the Eisenhower slates in Georgia and Texas. Their action on this test assured Taft's defeat.

Dewey has been cited as the instigator of the "fair play" memorandum sent to the Convention by twenty-five Republican state executives from the Governors' conference at Houston. As a matter of fact, it took considerable persuasion to lead the New York man to affix his signature. His only objection, according to a fel-

DIET AND HEALTH

Chemicals That Help Combat The Disease-Carrying Insects

By HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M.D.

LICE are notorious as carriers of disease—typhus, relapsing fever, and plague. That is why it is dangerous, not only for the person himself to have lice on the body, but for those around him.

Luckily, we live in the age of DDT and other new insecticides. These powerful chemicals, carefully sprayed or dusted on the body, can kill the lice and stop disease from spreading. We have already checked serious epidemics in this way.

Infestation Still Present

Despite these discoveries, more people still have lice than is often believed. This may seem surprising, for these insects cause severe itching, rashes, and infection. However, they are not easily removed with the usual washing, and many people infested with them do not practice strict habits of cleanliness.

There are three main types of lice. The head lice infect the head, usually attaching their eggs, called nits, near the base of the hair roots. The well known "cootie," or body louse, feeds on the skin, but attaches its eggs to the fibers of clothing next to the skin. The third type are public lice, commonly known as crab lice, or "crabs." They attach themselves to the hair of the groin, the hair under the arms, or the breast hair. Sometimes they are even seen in the eyebrows and eyelashes.

Many times a person has a skin rash, though the cause remains a mystery. In such cases, a careful search for lice will sometimes give the clue to the real cause. The nits can be seen easily if a careful search is made. They are usually grayish, and most often found on the hair around the back of the ears. Anyone bothered with itching of the hair or scalp, with signs of eczema of the scalp, should be thoroughly examined for lice.

Sources of Infection

In treating lice, all possible sources of infection should be examined and eliminated. Hats, combs, and hairbrushes should be disinfected. Infested clothing should be boiled and disinfected. For a louse infection on the body, however, the best thing to do is to consult your physician.

A DDT dust or lotion is very effective in killing the unwelcome insects. A compound known as cupress, as well as kerosene or larkspur, has also worked very well. Usually, the use of these chemicals should be followed by a vinegar rinse to remove the nits from the body. Clipping the hair is also helpful.

Antiseptic Ointment

If louse bites cause any infection of the skin, an antiseptic ointment should be used. Don't count infection, however, by delaying or using "home remedies." With DDT and modern drugs you can knock out lice in short order.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. J.: I am going to have a test to determine whether my tubes are open or not, so that I may have a baby. I have heard that this test is very dangerous. Is this true?

Answer: Usually, this test is not considered dangerous. A gas known as carbon dioxide is used in making the test, and since it is rapidly absorbed by the blood, there is little danger of an air bubble getting into the blood stream and causing difficulty, as is the case with other gases.

SYNOPSIS
Paul Lennox, handsome young pastor of a fashionable New York church, and Constance Marshall, business girl, are ardently in love. Alone with him at dinner tonight, Connie hopes he will propose, but he does not. Instead, he tells her of his quarrel with his patroness, wealthy, caustic Agatha Munchison, of his refusal to accept her contribution to his church fund of her threat to cause him trouble. Reaching home deeply disappointed, Connie finds her friend Elsie despairing, pining for Peter Dennis, the frivolous husband she had long ago divorced. Connie seeks and finds Dennis, pleads with him to see his former wife one more time. He agrees to do so. Returning from a dinner date with him, Elsie seems cured entirely of her nostalgic yearning.

CHAPTER NINE
PAUL looked at the clock for the twentieth time just as Miss Granby came in to say Mrs. Dennis was there, and had he signed the letters? Her faintly disapproving manner was due to the fact that his time was allocated and Mrs. Dennis, a monkey wrench. And Paul said, "Ask her to come in, Miss Granby."

He gave Miss Granby the letters and rose as Elsie, with marked hesitation, made her appearance. She trod delicately—the cat on a strange street; he could sense her inclination to retreat rather than advance, which was curious in anyone so self-assured. He noted, as Miss Granby had, less absently, the dark silken texture of her furs, the fur cap transfixed with a golden arrow, the aura of costly fragrance.

She said, "Hello, Paul... thanks for giving me a moment. I know I'm as unwelcome as Virus X when you're busy."

"I'm always glad to see you. Sit there, you'll find it comfortable, also an ash tray at your elbow." She sat down, ignored the ash tray, he saw that she was not only nervous but embarrassed, and his astonishment grew as his apprehension lessened. Her fine skin, under the cosmetic patina, exhibited fluctuations of color and she cried, "I'm here on the most absurd mission, Paul!"

"Better absurd than desperately serious," he said. "I've been wondering, of course. Naturally, I jumped to the conclusion it must be about Connie."

"Just in a way." She added quickly, "Nothing alarming, nothing she knows about. That is, she does know, but she mustn't know you do." She broke off, nelplessly. He said, "Elsie, I'm not a policeman. I'm not even Sam Spade. But I have never seen anyone look so guilty. Suppose you begin at the beginning."

She smiled. "I'd be here all day in that sense, Paul, as the beginning was over ten years ago. The past was only the cause of all this... Honestly, I don't know how to tell you."

"Try talking in simple terms. I'm becoming confused." "You're confused? All right. Before Christmas, Connie did some thing wonderful for me. I can't explain it, as I said, it stems from the past. I'll just say it was of incalculable value to me. Paul, have you noticed the gray coat she's worn the past couple of seasons?"

He said, with blank astonishment, "I think I've pinned you down and you're on a blade of grass six feet away. Yes, I've noticed it; it's very becoming to her."

"But not warm enough. I've begged her to buy something more suitable to our abominable climate. She could afford, to within limitations, but she always has other uses for her money; her mother, for instance. So I thought that for Christmas I'd give her a fur coat."

He said warmly, "That's good of you, Elsie, and like you as well." He wanted to look at the clock; he looked at her instead, concealing relief and some annoyance. Connie had refused a gift and Elsie had come to enlist him on her side. Was it so urgent?

He asked, "Did she turn you down?"

"Yes and no. Paul, if you breathe a word of this to Connie, I'll murder you, I'm haunt you."

"Elsie," he said, and laughed, "wouldn't it be the other way around?"

"I swore up and down," she said, frowning, "that I'd never tell you. Now I have to, I'm in a jam."

"I'm sorry to hear that," he said, "please go on."

"I've a lot of money, you know," Elsie said, "mostly in trust. Some wasn't. I've used a good deal of that, one way or another; the agency, for one thing. The trust comes to me as income. How much do you know about income tax?"

"I give up," he said, "trying to affix the pin. Income tax? All I know is, it's inevitable and unpleasant."

"You can say that again. I usually have to borrow to pay it. I'm extravagant. I never save enough. Last year I went overboard, made some loans among other things. One was fairly large. I can't write it off as a bad debt, it's not been outstanding long enough." She thought dourly of the amiable young man whom she had staked and who hadn't as yet struck pay dirt. Anything he panned, she thought, wouldn't be gold. Latterly he'd avoided her.

"That's neither here nor there," she went on. "The point is, anything allowed deductible helps, in my bracket... I won't have to borrow so much."

Paul sighed. "Does this have any bearing on the coat Connie did, and didn't refuse?"

"Why, yes. I know you think I'm crazy. Here goes. I wanted her to select the coat. I'd write her a check. We argued. I was determined she have it. I couldn't repay her with a thousand coats, not with all the money in the world. For what she'd done for me."

Finally, she gave in. She said nothing would induce her to accept the coat but she would take the money on condition I sent it to you, anonymously, for your gymnasium. She said it had to be done so you'd never find out; that if I sent it, in my name, you'd suspect something. Remember last summer she raised a little money for you? She put the bits on Grace and me as well as herself.

She knew you'd question her, if the check came from me. So, after I'd figured it out, I went to my bank, swore them to secrecy, and had them mail you the cashier's check with the typed card. I was rather proud of that last thought. I never dreamed I'd break my promise to Connie. But I had a session with my lawyer yesterday. Which is why I am here, to ask you to give me a receipt."

She was scarlet; he, the reverse. He looked at her, staggered as by a blow. He shook his head as if it sang under an impact. Then he said slowly, "Three thousand dollars?"

"Yes. You can't..." she remarked indifferently, "get a good mink coat under that..."

It is estimated that pre-convention and convention activities cost the Republicans of all factions between $20 million and $30 million. This is an absurdly high figure. It puts the Presidency up for sale.

Only one method is available for saving the convention and restoring self-respect for the delegates. That is to institute a secret ballot using voting machines. Under the rules, delegates vote by states. Under some of the laws governing primaries, delegates pledged to a candidate must vote for him for a varying number of ballots. In such circumstances, the secret ballot loses some of its effectiveness, since the delegates are already pledged to a candidate.

The primary laws are so varied that they have become an additional element of confusion. What is necessary is some uniformity in the primaries, but this seems difficult, if not impossible, because election laws are passed by state legislators for their own states. There is no Federal election law, except as corrupt practices appear or are charged in the election of Federal officials.

Thus, it is possible to have 48 varieties of primaries, and it is amazing how ingenious the human mind can be in devising instruments of confusion.

Nevertheless, if the delegates knew that at each convention their votes would be secret; that each delegate had to vote for himself; that no other person could vote in his name—the delegate might face this responsibility with more dignity and a greater sense of usefulness. A man must feel futile and frustrated when he is voted like a Hitler Youth.

Chemicals That Help Combat The Disease-Carrying Insects

By HERMAN M. BUNDENSEN, M.D.

LICE are notorious as carriers of disease—typhus, relapsing fever, and plague. That is why it is dangerous, not only for the person himself to have lice on the body, but for those around him.

Luckily, we live in the age of DDT and other new insecticides. These powerful chemicals, carefully sprayed or dusted on the body, can kill the lice and stop disease from spreading. We have already checked serious epidemics in this way.

Infestation Still Present

Despite these discoveries, more people still have lice than is often believed. This may seem surprising, for these insects cause severe itching, rashes, and infection. However, they are not easily removed with the usual washing, and many people infested with them do not practice strict habits of cleanliness.

There are three main types of lice. The head lice infect the head, usually attaching their eggs, called nits, near the base of the hair roots. The well-known "cootie," or body louse, feeds on the skin, but attaches its eggs to the fibers of clothing next to the skin. The third type are public lice, commonly known as crab lice, or "crabs." They attach themselves to the hair of the groin, the hair under the arms, or the breast hair. Sometimes they are even seen in the eyebrows and eyelashes.

Many times a person has a skin rash, though the cause remains a mystery. In such cases, a careful search for lice will sometimes give the clue to the real cause. The nits can be seen easily if a careful search is made. They are usually grayish, and most often found on the hair around the back of the ears. Anyone bothered with itching of the hair or scalp, with signs of eczema of the scalp, should be thoroughly examined for lice.

Sources of Infection

In treating lice, all possible sources of infection should be examined and eliminated. Hats, combs, and hairbrushes should be disinfected. Infected clothing should be boiled and disinfected. For a louse infection on the body, however, the best thing to do is to consult your physician.

A DDT dust or lotion is very effective in killing the unwelcome insects. A compound known as cupress, as well as kerosene or larkspur, has also worked very well. Usually, the use of these chemicals should be followed by a vinegar rinse to remove the nits from the body. Clipping the hair is also helpful.

Antiseptic Ointment

If louse bites cause any infection of the skin, an antiseptic ointment should be used. Don't court infection, however, by delaying or using "home remedies." With DDT and modern drugs you can knock out lice in short order.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. J. I am going to have a test to determine whether my tubes are open or not, so that I may have a baby. I have heard that this test is very dangerous. Is this true?

Answer: Usually, this test is not considered dangerous. A gas known as carbon dioxide is used in making the test, and since it is rapidly absorbed by the blood, there is little danger of an air bubble getting into the blood stream and causing difficulty, as is the case with other gases.

SYNOPSIS
Paul Lennox, handsome young pastor of a fashionable New York church, and Constance Marshall, business girl, are in love. Alone with him at dinner tonight, Connie hopes he will propose, but he does not. Instead, he tells her of his quarrel with his patroness, wealthy, caustic Agatha Marchison, of his refusal to accept her contribution to his church fund, of his threat to cause him trouble. Reaching home deeply disappointed, Connie finds her friend Elsie despairing, pining yet for Peter Dennis, the frivolous husband she had long ago divorced. Connie seeks and finds Dennis, pleads with him to see his former wife once more. He agrees to do so. Returning from a dinner date with him, Elsie seems cured entirely of her nostalgic yearning.

CHAPTER NINE

PAUL looked at the clock for the twentieth time just as Miss Granby came in to say Mrs. Dennis was there, and had he signed the letters? Her faintly disapproving manner was due to the fact that his time was allocated and Mrs. Dennis a monkey wrench. And Paul said, "Ask her to come in, Miss Granby."

He gave Miss Granby the letters and rose as Elsie, with marked hesitation, made her appearance. She trod delicately—the cat on a strange street; he could sense her inclination to retreat rather than advance, which was curious in anyone so self-assured. He noted, as Miss Granby had, less absently, the dark silken texture of her fur, the fur cap transfixed with a golden arrow, the aura of costly fragrance.

She said, "Hello, Paul... thanks for giving me a moment. I know I'm as unwelcome as Virus X when you're busy."

"I'm always glad to see you. Sit there, you'll find it comfortable, also an ash tray at your elbow." She sat down, ignored the ash tray, he saw that she was not only nervous but embarrassed, and his astonishment grew as his apprehension lessened. Her fine skin, under the cosmetic patina, exhibited fluctuations of color and she cried, "I'm here on the most absurd mission, Paul."

"Better absurd than desperately serious," he said. "I've been wondering, of course. Naturally, I jumped to the conclusion it must be about Connie."

"Just in a way." She added quickly, "Nothing alarming, nothing she knows about. That is, she does know, but she mustn't know you do." She broke off, helplessly.

He said, "Elsie, I'm not a policeman. I'm not even Sam Spade. But I have never seen anyone look so guilty. Suppose you begin at the beginning."

She smiled, "I'd be here all day in that sense, Paul, as the beginning was over ten years ago. The past was only the cause of all this... Honestly, I don't know how to tell you."

"Try talking in simple terms. I'm becoming confused."

"You're confused? All right. Before Christmas, Connie did something wonderful for me. I can't explain it, as I said, it stems from the past. I'll just say it was of incalculable value to me. Paul, have you noticed the gray coat she's worn the past couple of seasons?"

He said, with blank astonishment, "I think I've pinned you down and you're on a blade of grass six feet away. Yes, I've noticed it; it's very becoming to her."

"But not warm enough. I've begged her to buy something more suitable for our abominable climate. She could afford, to within limitations, but she always has other uses for her money; her mother, for instance. So I thought that for Christmas I'd give her a fur coat."

He said warmly, "That's good of you, Elsie, and like you so well." He wanted to look at the clock; he looked at her instead, concealing relief and some annoyance. Connie had refused a gift and Elsie had come to enlist him on her side. Was it so urgent?

He asked, "Did she turn you down?"

"Yes and no. Paul, if you breathe a word of this to Connie, I'll murder you, I'll haunt you."

"Elsie," he said, and laughed, "wouldn't it be the other way round?"

"I swore up and down," she said, frowning, "that I'd never tell you. Now I have to, I'm in a jam."

"I'm sorry to hear that," he said, "please go on."

"I've a lot of money, you know," Elsie said, "mostly in trust. Some wasn't. I've used a good deal of that, one way or another; the agency, for one thing. The trust comes to me as income. How much do you know about income tax?"

"I give up," he said, "trying to affix the pin. Income tax? All I know is, it's inevitable and unpleasant."

"You can say that again. I usually have to borrow to pay it. I'm extravagant. I never save enough. Last year I went overboard, made some loans among other things. One was fairly large. I can't write it off as a bad debt, it's not been outstanding long enough."

She thought dourly of the amiable young man whom she had staked and who hadn't as yet struck pay dirt. Anything he panned, she thought, wouldn't be gold. Latterly he'd avoided her. "That's neither here nor there," she went on. "The point is, anything allowed deductible helps, in my bracket... I won't have to borrow so much."

Paul sighed. "Does this have any bearing on the coat Connie did, and didn't refuse?"

"Why, yes. Here goes. I wanted her to select the coat. I'd write her a check. We argued. I was determined she have it. I couldn't repay her with a thousand coats, not with all the money in the world, for what she'd done for me. Finally, she gave in. She said nothing would induce her to accept the coat but she would take the money on condition I sent it to you, anonymously, for your gymnasium."

She said it had to be done so you'd never find out; that if I sent it, in my name, you'd suspect something. Remember last summer she raised a little money for you? She put the bite on Grace and me as well as herself. She knew you'd question her, if the check came from me. So, after I'd figured it out I went to my bank, swore them to secrecy, and had them mail you the cashier's check with the typed card. I was rather proud of that last thought. I never dreamed I'd give my promise to Connie. But I had a session with my lawyer yesterday. Which is why I am here, to ask you to give me a receipt."

She was scarlet; he, the reverse. He looked at her, staggered as by a blow. He shook his head as if it sang under an impact. Then he said slowly, "Three thousand dollars?"

"Yes. You can't...," she remarked indifferently, "get a good mink coat under that..."

news behind

the news

CHICAGO, July 17 — General Eisenhower's swift and complete reversal of Dewey's 1948 campaign tactics encourages party leaders in the belief that the New York governor will be nudged into the background of this year's presidential struggle, and in an "Eisenhower Administration," if the renovated GOP wins in November.

Ike's first act after his nomination was prompted by Dewey's woeful neglect of political entities four years ago. Privately and publicly, he assured members of the organization and Congress that every man or woman would be a general in the forthcoming battle. In 1948, there were too many brassy martinis and not enough privates, Dewey demoted the members of his command. Ike promoted them.

RELATIONS — Although learning the inside tricks of his new profession with amazing rapidity, which augurs future improvement in technique, Eisenhower was also given a thorough briefing in the New Yorker's blunders before and after the nominee arrived at Chicago. Many of his top advisers showed no compunction about suggesting that too intimate a tie-up with the two-time loser would be "the kiss of death," especially in such

Taft territory as Illinois, Ohio and Indiana.

Political courtesy requires General Eisenhower to show Dewey some consideration. Despite the politicians' dislike of the man at Albany, they rely on this kind of reciprocity for their own advancement and livelihood. Ingratitude is the mortal sin.

Even so, as the World II commander overseas, Ike frequently doghoused army buddies since West Point days when their operations or personalities endangered the larger cause or strained his relations with allied chieftains. A notable instance is De Gaulle, who has frequently been labelled as the "Dewey of French politics."

CREDIT — Moreover, Eisenhower realizes that Dewey's supposed "master-minding" of the pre-convention battle for delegates has been exaggerated grossly. The members of his private staff credit Senator James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, no great friend of the New Yorker, with proposing the strategy that contributed so heavily to Ike's triumph.

It was Duff who insisted that the General capitalize on the so-called "Texas steal." Raised in the hard school of Pennsylvania politics, "Big Red," as his friends call him, saw the emotional and technical appeal in this episode. As he told Eisenhower, it dramatized and sharpened the clash between youth and age, independents and stalwarts, insurgents and the Old Guard.

At first Ike would not listen. He characterized such a action as "dirty ball," and stubbornly refused to indulge in it. But when his Texas supporters furnished evidence supporting the Duff theory, he agreed to "roar across the country" with demands for "fair play."

PERSUASION — Herbert G. Brownell, a Dewey aide, transformed this angry oratory into the legal barrage known as the Langlie motion, which barred dubious delegates from voting on their own or other contests. As professing Liberals, such influential leaders as Warren, Stassen, Driscoll and many other bosses had to vote for the Eisenhower slates in Georgia and Texas. Their action on this test assured Taft's defeat.

Dewey has been cited as the instigator of the "fair play" memorandum sent to the Convention by twenty-five Republican state executives from the Governors' conference at Houston. As a matter of fact, it took considerable persuasion to lead the New York man to affix his signature. His only objection, according to a fellow-governor, was that "he did not originate the idea."

MEMORY — In addition to these earthy considerations, active Dewey participation might alienate millions of those Republican privates who agree with the thesis that "there is no substitute for victory." Their memory of "me, tooism" might offset the fact that the 1952 platform, framed largely by Taft-minded men, guarantees a frontal rather than a flank attack on "Trumanism."

SETBACK — The nomination of Senator Richard M. Nixon for second place was another Dewey setback. As a relative youngster in national affairs four years ago, the Californian's very existence was a matter of no importance to the Albany dynasty. They did not even exploit the anti-Communist issue which he had done so much to germinate as a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Dewey's team-mate of 1948, Governor Earl Warren of California, may join the New Yorker in relative obscurity. A lone wolver, Warren gave the youthful Nixon almost no help when the latter ran for the Senate in 1950. Should the GOP ticket win, Nixon will become the "big shot" on the coast and throughout the West generally.

Flower Show Is Planned For Homecoming

A flower show has been planned to be presented at the Scioto township homecoming to be held August 1 and 2 in Commercial Point.

Rules for the show are as follows: Entries may be made from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. on Aug. 1 in the O. H. Lawless show room, and they may be removed from the hall between 9 p. m. and 10 p. m. on Aug. 2, at which time the hall will be closed.

Judging will take place at 6 p. m. Aug. 1 in a closed hall, with the committee present for recording purposes.

Only one entry may be made in each class by an individual and all specimens must be grown by the individual. The committee will not be responsible for any loss, or breakage of containers or materials used.

Prizes in sections I, II and III will be $1.50 for first; $1.00, second; .75 third and a ribbon for fourth prize. In sections IV and V for junior gardeners, first prize will be .75; second, .50; third, .25 and a ribbon for fourth prize.

Committee for the show is composed of Mrs. Ben Grace of Ashville Route 2 and Mrs. John Hennick of Commercial Point.

Section I, which will be specimens exhibited in milk bottles, one bloom each of zinnias, large, small or fantasy; marigolds, large or small; gladioli and dahlias.

Section II, will include house plants blooming and house plants for foliage.

Section III, includes artistic arrangements to be exhibited for artistic effect. The classifications are "Tiny Treasures", not over three inches, total width or height; an all white arrangement of any kind of flowers in a white container; arrangements in metal containers; arrangements for coffee table; arrangements for dinner tables in which accessories may be used; an Oriental theme, in which accessories may be used; a composition suggested by a book title, song title, or nursery rhyme, in which the title must be exhibited and accessories may be used; "Foliage on Parade", flowerless arrangement; "Picnic on the Patio", arrangement for outdoor setting; and "Swing It High", hanging containers, baskets, cages or lanterns.

Section IV for junior gardeners will be specimens in milk bottles of zinnias, large or small.

Section V for junior gardeners will be arrangements which include, an arrangement of zinnias; "Small Fry", an arrangement of flowers or foliage using toy as a container, not over fifteen inches total width or height, and "Roadside Find", using seasonal roadside material.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Everette Phillips with Mrs. Ralph Hutchins as assisting hostess. The flower show arrangements will be the "Zinnia Parade" or "Lily Parade".

For best results, the dust bag of a vacuum cleaner should be emptied frequently to assure a free passage of air through it. If the brushes of the machine have become wrapped around with threads and lint, they can be easily cleaned by cutting the threads with scissors, and pulling the tangled litter from the brush with an old button hook—if you have such a thing around the house.

Mrs. Musselman Hostess To Group

Mrs. Marvin Musselman of Circleville Route 1, was hostess Wednesday to 13 members and seven guests of the Morris EUB Ladies Aid Society. Mrs. Bertha Wolf was the assisting hostess.

Members decided to paint the vestibule floor of the church.

Readings were given by Mrs. Virgil Hayslip, Mrs. Henry Dunkle, Mrs. Russell England, Mrs. Corilla Pontious and Mrs. Beatrice Anderson. Caroline Arledge offered a piano solo and Barbara England gave a vocal solo.

A salad course was served at the close of the meeting.

Junior Fair Show To Be Feature Of 1952 County Fair

4-H, FFA Youngsters To Compete

Grandstand Show On Final Night To Be Highlight

One of the outstanding features of the big, new 1952 Pickaway County Fair, beginning July 29 through Aug. 1, will be the junior fair program.

This year's junior fair exposition is expected to be larger and more comprehensive in scope than any since the county fair was revived here.

Hundreds of county boys and girls will participate in the junior fair, exhibiting their finest talents in farm work, art and school achievements.

Joining in the 1952 junior fair program will be the youngsters of the 4-H Clubs, Future Farmers of America chapters and schools.

Another feature will be the juvenile fine arts show, where their talents outside the farming and school interests may be viewed.

Larry Best, county extension agent representing the 4-H'ers, and Dave Klamfoth, vo-ag instructor representing the FFA, have outlined a program where the talents of the youngsters may be exhibited to the parents and other fair-goers.

Important to the future farming youths of the community will be the livestock judging program, which will make up the major part of the first three days of the four-day fair.

On Tuesday, July 29, opening day of the fair, judging will be held for sheep.

Beef judging, with the ultimate goal of all young beef-breeders—the grand champion steer selection—will be on July 30, second day of the fair.

Dairy cattle judging will be held the third day of the fair, with youngsters seeking claim to the "best of breed" awards.

AND HIGHLIGHT of the junior fair this year will be the annual junior livestock sale, where the champion animals and the also-rans will be placed before the critical eyes of competitive buyers representing big packing houses.

In past years, the livestock sale has been held in the judging barn, where many folks have been turned away because of lack of seating and space.

This year, however, Reid said the sale will be held in front of the grandstand on Aug. 1 so everyone wishing to see the sale may do so.

Preceding the sale, the 4-H and FFA boys and girls will put on a special program for the persons in attendance.

The pre-sale program will begin with a 4-H style review at about 6:45 p. m., followed by a livestock parade past the stands at about 7:45 p. m.

Actual sale proceedings will begin at about 8:30 p. m.

There will be no admission charged in the grandstand during any of the final night's junior fair activities.

Turko-Yugoslav Markets Hungry

BELGRADE (AP)—Hungry for new markets and new sources of raw material, Yugoslavia has been developing in recent months closer trade relations with Turkey in a move which may strengthen relations between the two southeast European countries.

This country, woefully short of textiles, is dickering with Turkey for large scale purchases of cotton. For its part, Turkey wants wheat, dried fruit, cement, some finished goods and manganese.

Business between the two countries so far has largely been carried out on a barter basis. For example, Yugoslavia recently signed a contract for 5,000 tons of wheat to be paid for in cement and wood products.

Mine Safety Law Said Too Weak

WASHINGTON, July 17 — President Truman has signed a bill that permits the government to close coal mines it considers unsafe. But he says the measure isn't really strong enough to prevent disaster.

The President, in signing the measure Wednesday, said it was a significant step toward ending "the appalling toll of death and injury to miners," but he said Congress eventually will have to enact more adequate legislation.

Like Lots Of GIs, Ike Had Hopes Of Going Home, Taking It Easy

Editor's Note: Here is another in a series of articles on the background of Dwight Eisenhower who is seeking to become the next President of the U. S.

By SAUL PETT
Associated Press Writer

Like the GIs who served under him, Dwight Eisenhower was anxious to get home after victory in Europe.

He spoke wistfully of relaxing, after the greatest military command in history, of getting out of uniform and official life, of fishing, playing golf, painting and finding Mamie and himself the permanent home they had never had since their marriage in 1916.

Few if any of those postwar dreams came true.

In the six years between SHAEF and SHAPE, between his two "Crusades in Europe," Ike had only a year and a half as a private citizen, and they weren't very private. He did manage to buy a home, a 160-acre farm near Gettysburg, but has yet to live on it. And he won't, Republicans insist, in the next four years.

THE FIRST FEW months after V-E day were crowded with receptions and honors in Europe and at home. In all, he was awarded 50 U. S. and foreign decorations, 19 honorary degrees and 20 assorted medals, swords and awards of cities, private groups and nations. He was given part of a castle in Scotland, and a mountain peak in Canada was named after him.

He was eulogized to the limit, but he wore his superlatives with a smiling humility. He invariably credited the men who fought under him and spoke of himself only as their symbol.

He took almost every opportunity to plead for international understanding. Probably his most moving effort in that direction was made in his famous Gull-hall speech in London. He said: "To preserve his freedom of worship, his equality before law, his liberty to speak and act as he sees fit, subject only to provisions that he trespass not upon similar rights of others—a Londoner will fight. So will a citizen of Abilene.

"When we consider these things, then the valley of the Thames draws closer to the farms of Kansas and the plains of Texas. To my mind it is clear that when two people will face the tragedies of war to defend the same spiritual values, the same treasured rights, then in the deepest sense those two are truly related.

"SO, EVEN AS I proclaim my undying Americanism, I am bold enough and exceedingly proud to claim the basis of kinship to you of London."

In that bright, hopeful summer of 1945, Eisenhower went to Moscow for high honors of the Kremlin. He praised the Russian people and said he thought Stalin sincerely wanted peace with the United States. But before the year was out, he gave this as a formula for dealing with the Russians:

"Firmness, patience, a sense of humor—and keep your powder dry."

Ike came home that year, but not to relax. He accepted appointment as chief of staff out of sense of duty, not personal desire, according to some biographers.

For the next three years, he was continually on the move, testifying before congressional committees on demobilization or unification, or touring defenses in four continents. And then there was politics—the continual pressures that sent him into a corner to search his soul to decide whether he should be a presidential candidate. But let's save the story of Ike's political emergency for another chapter.

In 1948, he retired from the Army to find that his prestige far outweighed his bank account. According to Kevin McCann, an aide and author of "Man From Abilene," Ike had only a "few thousand" saved up. According to John Gunther, author of "Eisenhower," the general of the Army found it difficult at one point to raise a $500 emergency loan for a friend.

AS A UNIVERSITY president, Ike refused to lead fund-raising campaigns personally, to the disappointment of some people at Columbia. But he did organize an institute of war and peace, a nutrition center and the American assembly, a forum for discussion of world problems. Incidentally, the building which houses the assembly was donated by Averell Harriman, who may be Ike's rival for the White House this year.

Late one night in December, 1950, the general had just returned to his railroad car after delivering a speech near Bucyrus, Ohio.

He was told Washington was calling. He took the call at a nearby freight house. It was President Truman asking Ike to command Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers, Europe.

Once again Ike was off to organize Western Europe's arms, this time against the Russian threat. Eighteen days after that phone call, he was flying to Paris, to assume enormous politico-military chores in trying to turn a few small scattered units into a cohesive force.

How well he succeeded cannot be determined statistically, by number divisions—facts which are veiled by security and blurred by differing opinions. But most people agree that he did set up a working, effective, unified command and did increase Western Europe's will to fight, if necessary.

THIS is—to coin a phrase—a “shopper’s market.”

Folks are taking a keen look at what they get for what they pay—and they’re taking a double look at price tags.

That’s the kind of market where Buick really shines.

Do you know why?

Buick prices are down within easy reach of the folks who buy what’s known as “the low-priced three.”

Fact is—a big chunk of Buick sales comes from the folks who trade in one of this low-priced trio.

For very few extra dollars, they’re getting a lot more automobile.

They’re getting more power—and the thrill that goes with it.

They’re getting “big-car” comfort. They’re getting a ride that cost a million dollars and more to develop.

They like the room, the fabrics, the extra appointments they find in the smart-stepping beauty pictured here. And they like Dynaflo Drive.*

They like the way it handles. They like the way it’s engineered. They like the belt they get out of touching off the power of its Fireball 8 Engine—and they like the miles they get from a gallon of fuel.

So Buick sales are booming. Not just the SPECIAL—but also the SUPER and ROADMASTER. Folks find that each one is the buy in its field.

When we tell you that business is great, we can back up that statement with figures. More people are buying Buicks than any other car at their price or above.

Why don’t you come in and see for yourself what’s behind this popularity?

If you can afford a new car, you can be the proud owner of a Buick.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

In 1948, he retired from the Army to find that his prestige far outweighed his bank account. According to Kevin McCann, an aide and author of "Man From Abilene," Ike had only a "few thousand" saved up. According to John Gunther, author of "Eisenhower," the general of the Army found it difficult at one point to raise a $500 emergency loan for a friend.

IKE HAD BOUGHT a car before leaving Fort Myer. It was a big event, unusually big for a man well grounded in big events. The whole Eisenhower household trooped out to watch as the general said proudly to his wife:

"Darling, there's the entire result of 37 years' work since I caught the train out of Abilene."

However, the general's money problems were solved when he wrote his memoirs, "Crusade in Europe," in 46 days. The book sold more than 800,000 copies and reportedly earned its author more than $600,000.

In his year and a half as president of Columbia University, Eisenhower found an opportunity to speak out on public issues he couldn't discuss as an army officer. Besides thumping for international cooperation, he took on domestic problems.

Too much emphasis, he said, was being placed on personal security at the expense of personal liberty. "If all Americans want is security," he said, "they can go to prison."

He opposed class warfare between labor and capital, declaring: "We miserably fail to challenge the lie that what is good for management is necessarily bad for labor; that for one side to profit, the other must be depressed."

AS A UNIVERSITY president, Ike refused to lead fund-raising campaigns personally, to the disappointment of some people at Columbia. But he did organize an institute of war and peace, a nutrition center and the American assembly, a forum for discussion of world problems. Incidentally, the building which houses the assembly was donated by Averell Harriman, who may be Ike's rival for the White House this year.

County SCS Pre-Flight Tour Booked

A group of Pickaway County agriculture officials and air-minded farm men are to view the county's farmlands from the air Friday morning.

The men will be participating in a pre-flight trip for the second annual Soil Conservation Service air tour of the county.

Friday's scheduled pre-flight program will give the SCS officials and local flying farmers an opportunity to chart a course for the annual air tour due Aug. 14.

Participating in Friday's pre-flight tour will be Don Archer and Gordon Massie of the local SCS; Hillis Hall, vo-ag teacher; Ralph May, Winfred Bidwell, Paul Peck, Wendell Wardell and Dr. Wells Wilson of the county SCS board; County Superintendent George D. McDowell; and Fred McCoy, Jim Fortney, Bob Elsea and Howard Thomas, local air-minded farmers.

THOSE MAKING the pre-flight tour will look for good meadows, pastures, diversions, terraces, woodlands, open ditches, strip cropping and other good conservation practices throughout the county.

At the same time, they will seek farmland which has been abused. The abused lands will be sought in order to help Pickaway County farmers check erosion and make their farms produce more per acre, while still leaving it tillable for their grandchildren.

The Aug. 14 air tour is to be a one-half hour flight over the county with air maps showing the points of interest and authorities pointing out their meanings.

Ohio Leads Nation In Defense Jobs

WASHINGTON, July 17 — (AP) — Ohio led the nation in the number of government-aided defense plant expansion projects, the Defense Production Administration reports.

The DPA said Ohio firms obtained 1,125 certificates permitting federal tax benefits for new plants, additions and equipment valued at $1,226,877,000.

Among Ohio projects on the DPA's latest list was Union Carbide and Carbon Corp., $2,722,000 for styrene production at Marietta, 45 per cent tax privilege.

Germ Warfare Claim Repeated

LONDON, July 17 — (AP) — The "Red" Dean of Canterbury, defying official criticism of his pro-Communist activities, Wednesday repeated his charges that U. S. air men waged germ warfare in Korea.

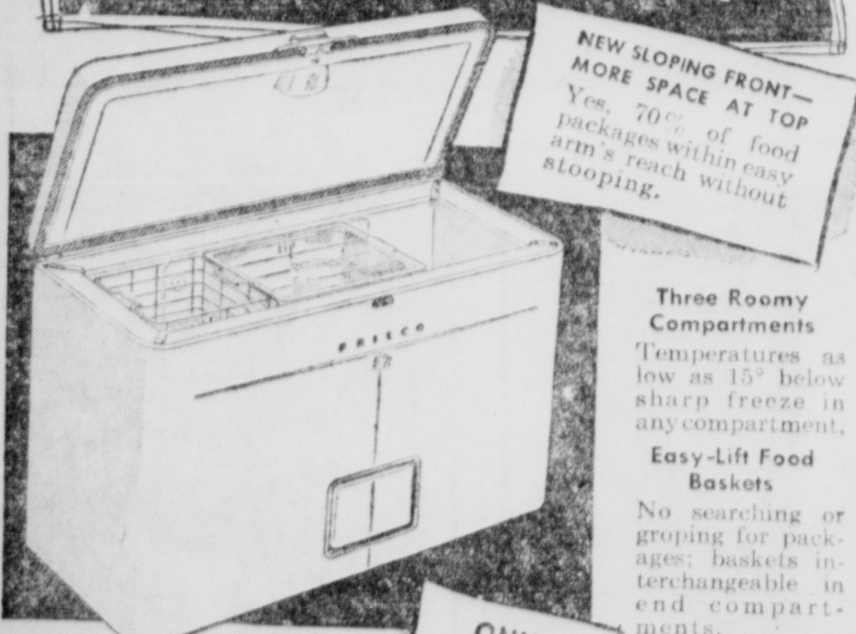

Speaking at a meeting of the Britain-China Friendship Association, Dr. Hewlett Johnson declared that during his recent trip to Peking he had seen evidence of such warfare with his own eyes.

Cline, Dem-Convention Bound, Admits Ike's Tough To Beat

Guy G. Cline, Pickaway County prosecutor, will leave Sunday to attend the Democratic national convention in Chicago, probably accompanied by Ralph May of Circleville.

May's plans to attend the gathering which opens next week, are subject to last minute change. Cline will attend as an alternate from the 6th congressional district.

Cline pointed out the Ohio delegation is pledged to support former Sen. Robert J. Bulkley as a "favorite son" at the start of the balloting, and consequently he was not free to express personal preference on the leading candidates.

He observed, however, that Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois "seems to have definitely taken himself out of the picture" by his persistent refusal to seek the nomination.

CLINE SAID he sees "virtually no chance" President Truman will change his mind and agree to run again. "The possibility is always there," Cline said, "but I feel it's very remote."

The county prosecutor, who also attended the 1948 Democratic convention as a spokesman from the 11th congressional district, said he "certainly hoped" the Democrats will stage a more orderly convention than the Republicans.

He added he felt Dwight Eisenhower "will be very difficult to beat," but claimed the Democrats can do it with effective organization work and a good candidate slate.

Cline said the Democrats have an especially good opportunity to attract the public's voting power again if the party stages an impressive convention at Chicago and radiates a spirit of unity. It would be in contrast to the Republican convention during which an underlying factional bitterness was clearly seen.

"As to whether the Democrats are able to rest upon their record," Cline said, "I am not for a change in policy, but for improvement of the present policies.

"There must be admissions that some mistakes have been made. It couldn't have been otherwise when the human element is so deeply involved."

"THAT, HOWEVER, does not cancel out the established policies. Given careful study and improvement, they can carry the nation through."

Cline said he felt the Republican convention purposely minimized the importance of farm and labor policies.

"They tried to ignore them," he said, "when the whole country knows they're of prime importance to America's future."

"I contend the continued success and living improvements of the farmers and laboring men are vital issues before any national election. There's been entirely too much emphasis on foreign policy at the expense of domestic problems."

"We forget too often that foreign policy, to a great degree, is always forced into shape by developments and factors beyond our control."

"We need broader views in our approach to all the issues. There must be an end to steps based entirely upon the views and desires

Teacher Loses Slander Suit

FAIRMONT, W. Va., July 17 — (AP) — Dr. Luella R. Mundel, 38-year-old college art teacher, has lost her $100,000 slander suit against a Fairmont housewife who is vice-president of the West Virginia Board of Education.

Dr. Mundel had charged she lost her job at Fairmont State College a year ago because Mrs. Thelma B. Loudin told other members of the board she was an atheist and a poor security risk. A local jury deliberated a little more than two hours before returning its verdict for Mrs. Loudin.

World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, July 17 — (AP) — When Gen. Douglas MacArthur disappeared into the applauding platform crowd after delivering his keynote speech at the Republican National Convention he may really have begun his fade-away from American public life, or at least its political life.

He was a Taft man. So long as the Ohio senator had a chance for the presidential nomination, MacArthur had a chance for the vice presidential spot.

There was even talk MacArthur might be considered for President if Sen. Robert Taft and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower stale mated each other.

But the door slammed shut on any hopes MacArthur might have had for high elective office when the nomination went to Eisenhower. Two generals on one ticket would have been one too many, anyway. And there was no reason why Eisenhower should want him on the ticket.

BECAUSE HIS pre-convention hostility to Eisenhower was no secret and because their foreign policy views were so opposite, it's unlikely MacArthur would offer to stump for Eisenhower or that Eisenhower would want him to.

This undoubtedly was MacArthur's last chance for the White House or the vice presidency. When he appeared before the convention in civilian clothes he looked like what he is: an old man.

By the time the 1956 conventions roll around MacArthur will obviously be too old for consideration. He'd be 76.

Neither his appearance nor his speech was a sensation. He got an ovation but the following night former President Hoover got a much bigger reception.

And there were yawns as MacArthur picked his way through his long and carefully prepared address. The yawns may have been due to his complicated sentences.

Tax Refund Job About Complete

WASHINGTON, July 17 — (AP) — The Internal Revenue Bureau's job of making refunds to people who overpaid their 1951 income taxes is about 98 per cent complete, but officials estimated today that about 550,000 more checks will go out.

The 28 1/2 million people to whom refunds have been mailed so far have averaged a record high $64.36 compared to $53.56 for 1950 income tax overpayments and the previous record of $55 for 1948, a year of big tax reduction.

Or maybe what he had to say had become an old story.

County SCS Pre-Flight Tour Booked

A group of Pickaway County agriculture officials and air-minded farm men are to view the county's farmlands from the air Friday morning.

The men will be participating in a pre-flight trip for the second annual Soil Conservation Service air tour of the county.

Friday's scheduled pre-flight program will give the SCS officials and local flying farmers an opportunity to chart a course for the annual air tour due Aug. 14.

Participating in Friday's pre-flight tour will be Don Archer and Gordon Massie of the local SCS; Hillis Hall, vo-ag teacher; Ralph May, Winfred Bidwell, Paul Peck, Wendell Wardell and Dr. Wells Wilson of the county SCS board; County Superintendent George D. McDowell; and Fred McCoy, Jim Fortney, Bob Elsea and Howard Thomas, local air-minded farmers.

THOSE MAKING the pre-flight tour will look for good meadows, pastures, diversions, terraces, woodlands, open ditches, strip cropping and other good conservation practices throughout the county.

At the same time, they will seek farmland which has been abused. The abused lands will be sought in order to help Pickaway County farmers check erosion and make their farms produce more per acre, while still leaving it tillable for their grandchildren.

The Aug. 14 air tour is to be a one-half hour flight over the county with air maps showing the points of interest and authorities pointing out their meanings.

Ohio Leads Nation In Defense Jobs

WASHINGTON, July 17 — (AP) — Ohio led the nation in the number of government-aided defense plant expansion projects, the Defense Production Administration reports.

The DPA said Ohio firms obtained 1,125 certificates permitting federal tax benefits for new plants, additions and equipment valued at $1,226,877,000.

Among Ohio projects on the DPA's latest list was Union Carbide and Carbon Corp., $2,722,000 for styrene production at Marietta, 45 per cent tax privilege.

Germ Warfare Claim Repeated

LONDON, July 17 — (AP) — The "Red" Dean of Canterbury, defying official criticism of his pro-Communist activities, Wednesday repeated his charges that U. S. airmen waged germ warfare in Korea.

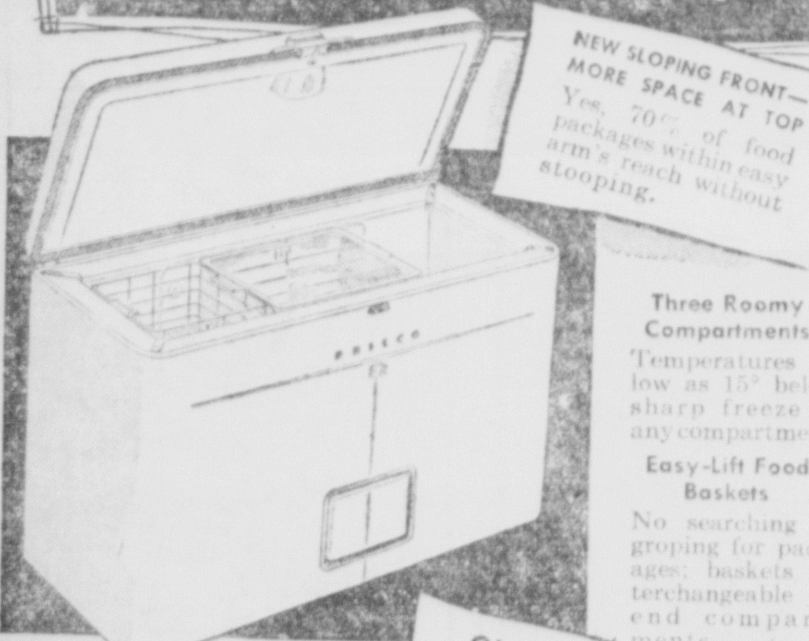

Speaking at a meeting of the Britain-China Friendship Association, Dr. Hewlett Johnson declared that during his recent trip to Peking he had seen evidence of such warfare with his own eyes.

Cline, Dem-Convention Bound, Admits Ike's Tough To Beat

Guy G. Cline, Pickaway County prosecutor, will leave Sunday to attend the Democratic national convention in Chicago, probably accompanied by Ralph May of Cincinnati.

May's plans to attend the gathering which opens next week, are subject to last minute change. Cline will attend as an alternate from the 6th congressional district.

Cline pointed out the Ohio delegation is pledged to support former Sen. Robert J. Bulkley as a "favorite son" at the start of the balloting, and consequently he was not free to express personal preference on the leading candidates.

He observed, however, that Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois "seems to have definitely taken himself out of the picture" by his persistent refusal to seek the nomination.

CLINE SAID he sees "virtually no chance" President Truman will change his mind and agree to run again. "The possibility is always there," Cline said, "but I feel it's very remote."

The county prosecutor, who also attended the 1948 Democratic convention as a spokesman from the 11th congressional district, said he "certainly hoped" the Democrats will stage a more orderly convention than the Republicans.

He added he felt Dwight Eisenhower "will be very difficult to beat" but claimed the Democrats can do it with effective organization work and a good candidate slate.

Cline said the Democrats have an especially good opportunity to attract the public's voting power again if the party stages an impressive convention at Chicago and radiates a spirit of unity. It would be in contrast to the Republican convention during which an underlying factional bitterness was clearly seen.

"As to whether the Democrats are able to rest upon their record," Cline said, "I am not for a chance

Teacher Loses Slander Suit

FAIRMONT, W. Va., July 17 — (AP) — Dr. Luella R. Mundel, 38-year-old college art teacher, has lost her $100,000 slander suit against a Fairmont housewife who is vice-president of the West Virginia Board of Education.

Dr. Mundel had charged she lost her job at Fairmont State College a year ago because Mrs. Thelma B. Loudin told other members of the board she was an atheist and a poor security risk. A local jury deliberated a little more than two hours before returning its verdict for Mrs. Loudin.

I certainly hope you have a freezer, for now is the time to stock up on meats. EAVEY'S SUPER MARKET is having the biggest sale you've ever seen in the Meat Department. Not the usual "sale" variety, all these meats are beautifully trimmed of all excess fat and bone. Fill your freezer at these low prices. That's one way to cut down the high cost of living.

Speaking of the rising cost of living, I think the place it bothers me least is when buying groceries. During a shopping trip this week, one of my friends bought a new fur coat, and a good one. (Not mine). Of course, she paid a good price for it, too, but as she explained to me, it was really an investment in putting up a good appearance. I don't think I would have given the incident a second thought, but on the way home we stopped at the grocery store. (Eavey's, of course). During our expedition through the store, my friend remarked that she begrudged every penny she spent for food, since it was so high, and after it was eaten, you had nothing to show for it. Well, my Aunt Flossie used to say that the best investment anyone could make was in good food. For after all, she would tell me, you have ample reward in the health of your family. I think everyone worries about the budget, frankly, that's why I shop at Eavey's. I KNOW, when I shop there, that not only will I get the very best service and the freshest merchandise, but that the prices will be the lowest in town.

Now is the salad season, and a welcome time it is in our family! We like them all, from plain head lettuce with EAVEY'S Salad Dressing, to the kind made with meat or fish that are meals in themselves. Now, on your next grocery shopping trip, stop by the Produce Department in your EAVEY'S SUPER MARKET, and let me know if you don't agree that they have a really exceptional display of crisp and fresh vegetables. It's an inspiration just to go through that department. Makes you feel cooler.

Don't forget to send in your Household Hints and recipes. Of course, EAVEY'S will pay $1.00 for any they publish. Just address them to ANNE VERITY, THE EAVEY COMPANY, XENIA, OHIO.

To make an adhesive bandage fit snugly over a curved area, such as an elbow or knee, slit the adhesive lengthwise in the center of the pineapple and cut all the slits at the same time. Makes all pieces uniform size and saves time and mess.

Try filling your gallon thermos with ice water and ice cubes in the morning and leaving it on the back porch. The children will be able to get a cold drink and it will cut down the wear and tear on Mom and the refrigerator.

When using canned sliced pineapple to make fruit salad, insert knife in the center of the pineapple and cut all the slits at the same time. Makes all pieces uniform size and saves time and mess.

I certainly hope you have a freezer, for now is the time to stock up on meats. EAVEY'S SUPER MARKET is having the biggest sale you've ever seen in the Meat Department. Not the usual "sale" variety, all these meats are beautifully trimmed of all excess fat and bone. Fill your freezer at these low prices. That's one way to cut down the high cost of living.

Speaking of the rising cost of living, I think the place it bothers me least is when buying groceries. During a shopping trip this week, one of my friends bought a new fur coat, and a good one. (Not mine). Of course, she paid a good price for it, too, but as she explained to me, it was really an investment in putting up a good appearance. I don't think I would have given the incident a second thought, but on the way home we stopped at the grocery store. (Eavey's, of course). During our expedition through the store, my friend remarked that she begrudged every penny she spent for food, since it was so high, and after it was eaten, you had nothing to show for it. Well, my Aunt Flosie used to say that the best investment anyone could make was in good food. For after all, she would tell me, you have ample reward in the health of your family. I think everyone worries about the budget, frankly, that's why I shop at Eavey's. I KNOW, when I shop there, that not only will I get the very best service and the freshest merchandise, but that the prices will be the lowest in town.

Now is the salad season, and a welcome time it is in our family! We like them all, from plain head lettuce with EAVEY'S Salad Dressing, to the kind made with meat or fish that are meals in themselves. Now, on your next grocery shopping trip, stop by the Produce Department in your EAVEY'S SUPER MARKET, and let me know if you don't agree that they have a really exceptional display of crisp and fresh vegetables. It's an inspiration just to go through that department. Makes you feel cooler.

Don't forget to send in your Household Hints and recipes. Of course, EAVEY'S will pay $1.00 for any they publish. Just address them to ANNE VERITY, THE EAVEY COMPANY, XENIA, OHIO.

See you next week.

Yankee Stadium Is Graveyard For Hapless Cleveland Tribe

NEW YORK, July 17 — (AP) — Detroit Tigers to a 9-0 victory over Cleveland, graveyard of the Cleveland pennant drives in the past, is haunting the Indians again. Cleveland started the baseball world by winning its first three games in the home of the New York Yankees this year.

This almost matched their victory total for the previous two seasons during which they managed to win only five of 17 games in the house that Babe Ruth built.

But Cleveland's dreams of a happy hunting ground in the stadium were rudely shattered Wednesday. The Indians missed an opportunity to virtually tie the Yanks for first place by dropping both ends of a doubleheader, 8-7 in 10 innings and 7-4. They now are 4½ games behind.

The Yanks came from behind to win the opener, Yogi Berra tied the score at 7-7 in the eighth inning with a two-run homer, his 20th of the season, and Hank Bauer broke it up by singling home rookie Kal Segrist in the 10th.

THE YANKS WON the nightcap with a four-run rally in the seventh against Bob Feller. Gil McDougald's three-run homer was the big blow of the rally.

The defeats also endangered Cleveland's grip on second place as the third place Boston Red Sox defeated the Chicago White Sox, 7-3, to move to within a half game of the Tribe.

Lefty Mel Parnell scattered nine Chicago hits as he coasted to his seventh victory.

Southpaw Bill Wight pitched the

Redlegs Look Like Bums In Dodger Joust

CINCINNATI, July 17 — (AP) — It's only July 17 but the Brooklyn Dodgers can wrap up the season's series with Cincinnati by winning Thursday's game with the Reds.

The Dodgers' 11th victory in 12 games with Cincinnati came Wednesday night as they whipped the Reds, 5-3.

Andy Seminick, Redleg catcher, was the villain Wednesday night. He set a National League record for catchers by committing three errors in the first inning as the Dodgers galloped into a two-run lead.

Andy dropped one foul and twice threw into centerfield while trying to catch runners. On one of the throws, however, neither Roy McMillan nor Grady Hatton showed up at second base.

Hatton was another Redleg who had trouble. After handling 304 chances without an error, the Cincinnati second baseman dropped a throw by Seminick in the sixth inning for a miscue.

At that time, Hatton was within 16 chances of equalling the National League record by second baseman of handling 320 chances without an error.

Tourney Tilt Weathered Out

A county softball tournament contest between Lawless of Five Points and Kuchheiser's was rained out in Ted Lewis Park Wednesday night.

The two teams will meet Friday night to play the delayed contest. The encounter will begin at about 8:15 p. m.

State Patrolmen List Leading Causes Of Accidents Here

Passing Chief Violation Of Drivers Here

Fast And Slow Drivers Both Dangerous

Speed, slow driving, drinking and driving, inattention and taking chances on passing are the essentials for Pickaway County motorists to avoid when taking to the highways.

Cincinnati's State Highway Patrolmen Bob Greene and Gene Miller have listed those reasons as the most numerous causes of accidents over local highways.

And heading the list of local accidents by the patrol are motorists who pass without assured clear distances ahead, passing on hills, curves or other places vision is obscured.

In each of those instances, the motorist crosses a yellow line put on the highway to warn him to stay in his own lane of traffic.

COMPLETE list of leading causes of accidents here, as prepared by the patrolmen, is as follows:

SPEED
Misjudging width of roads, failing to negotiate curves, failing to stop if traffic or other obstacle appears, passing on hills and curves.

SLOW DRIVING
Slow driving on weekends or holidays result in traffic piling up to the rear of the slow driver; drivers attempting to pass a long string of slowed vehicles without a clear view of conditions ahead. When this happens and the passer is confronted with oncoming traffic he has nowhere to reenter his lane, must veer to right or left or meet oncoming vehicles.

DRINKING, DRIVING
Drivers who are not necessarily drunk but have had enough so that it affects their better judgment. This results in drivers taking chances they normally would not take, making them reckless operators.

WEATHER CONDITIONS
Speed in excess for conditions of highways. After long, dry period the roadway develops a greasy surface. A light rain makes the surface exceedingly slippery. Shiny road surface when wet usually is a very slippery road, with most accidents happening on curves.

INATTENTION
Driver fails to give full attention to driving, resulting in his vehicle drifting to the right onto the berm. When an attempt is made to return to the road, driver loses control, skidding into road or across road into a ditch or path of an oncoming car. Usually happens when berm level is lower than the highway level.

PASSING
Driver fails to study the surface of the road available prior to passing. Driver who looks only directly in front of his vehicle instead of studying the roadway 300 or 400 feet ahead; driver who pulls out to pass a string of autos without assuring himself he has room between cars to pull into in case emergency arises.

Dr. Hedges Veterinarian For County Fair

Dr. E. W. Hedges of North Court street has been named veterinarian for the coming Pickaway County Fair.

Hedges was selected by the county Agricultural Society to replace Dr. C. W. Cronley of Ashville, who has performed the duties during the last several years.

The move was made as the first step toward establishing a rotating selection of the county's veterinarians to serve during county fairs here.

Henry Reid, manager of the 1952 county fair, said another of the county's veterinarians will be chosen for the post next year.

Hedges will donate his time and service to the fair board and will be on the fairgrounds each day to perform certification and inspection of animals exhibited during the fair.

His duties will be to make sure all proper tests, inspections and vaccinations have been completed by the owners and to issue permits to exhibit for those with proper certification.

When you are cleaning the closed type surface unit of an electric range, be sure to wait until it is cool. Wash the top with a damp, soapy cloth; dry thoroughly. Wash the reflector underneath once a week or oftener, as needed. A cloth wrung out of soapsuds will usually keep the metal ring which surrounds the element spotless and shining.
